

ARREST ALL STRIKE LEADERS

STRIKE MEASURES TO END THE RAILROAD TIE-UP.

Penalties Possible for Promoters of Accidents Result—Unions Keep on Voting to Strike, but Set No Military Force in Paris.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN.

PARIS, Oct. 13.—The first day of the general railway strike has ended without giving way. The Government is considering the question of inducing the leaders of the strike for plotting against the internal safety of the state, and the idea as too serious to be abandoned. It would involve the Senate as a high court of justice. The Government considered that the common law is not sufficient to punish with penal servitude the death of rendering the railway traffic dangerous to life. Fifty warrants have been issued, twenty in Paris and the rest in the provinces, against the chief instigators of the movement.

The warrants in the provinces are for the arrest of Parisians who have gone to the provinces to agitate among the employees in favor of striking.

The official journal publishes a decree naming for service with the strike for one day, the officials of the employees' unions for the Western, Eastern, Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean and Paris-Rhône systems.

The administration of the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean company trusts that the strike will not be carried out as last year. The company spent 2,000,000 francs for increased wages. Its drivers average $250 yearly, and its firemen $210.

The employees of the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean system met last evening and voted to strike. Six hundred employees of the Orleans company took similar action, but it is not true, as was reported in the afternoon, that the Eastern system voted on the question up to that time.

The Eastern and Western railroads joined the strike when they heard of the action of the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean system.

The employees of the Metropolitan system of Paris have voted to strike in sympathy. No time has been fixed for stopping work in any of these cases.

The unions and allied trades have voted to general strike beginning tomorrow.

The General Transatlantic Steamship company is arranging a boat service to Havre for Saturday afternoon.

It is expected that the warrants issued for the arrest of leaders of the strike will be served tomorrow morning.

Many pathetic stories are told in connection with the strike. In one case a mother was found weeping at a station, she being unable to reach the beds of her dying child. Another woman was lamenting the loss of her daughter who had left Cherbourg on a train this morning, as the train was held up by the strike.

The newspaper is employing outbursts for the purpose of distributing their copies. The Petit Parisien has sixty copies employed for this purpose.

There is a shortage of meat and poultry in the markets, there is a considerable supply of tomatoes, beans and soups from southern France.

There is a shortage of these supplies have been forwarded to the north where the prices of these supplies have risen. The bulk situation is the most serious in 1,000,000 liters ordinarily arrive daily from the Western, Eastern and Southern lines. This supply is now almost entirely cut off.

On Oct. 12, the passengers for the Atlantic steamships Tarentine and Adriatic, sailing from Cherbourg this morning, were afraid to board the ships. They were afraid of the railway strike.

The railway strike were happily dismissed. They left the St. Lazare station on a special train at 9:40 o'clock.

The train, however, arrived at Cherbourg at 6 o'clock this morning, and the relief of the officers of the French companies, who thought the passengers would be held up at Caen.

A tourist said he was one of the passengers who missed the special boat for Cherbourg. He suggested an auto for the day, for which he paid $100.

The Eastern Railway station this afternoon, the agent assured the correspondents of THE SUN that traffic there would be resumed.

He said that only fifty employees had struck and six had been dismissed. The employees of the Eastern Railway, however, held a meeting and decided to strike at midnight.

The employees are also expected to join the Western and Mediterranean strikes.

The employees of the Western State Railroad, however, are in sympathy with the strike.

The employees of the Northern system, however, are in sympathy with the strike.

POLICE IN A CANE RUSH.

Bellevue Medical Students Fight Until Three Are Killed—A Broken Head.

Two hundred freshmen and sophomores of the Bellevue Medical College gathered in front of the college at Twenty-sixth street and First avenue yesterday afternoon to have a cane rush.

So great a success was the rush that the police had to stop it. They repeatedly charged the mob of young men. Three students were locked up, one of them with a broken head.

Just before 2 o'clock some one threw a heavy cane into Twenty-sixth street. Immediately there was a scramble and a fight. The combatants spread over to First avenue, passersby took to the opposite side of the street.

Several went to the college to complain but the instructors did nothing. Finally Dr. F. V. Standish, one of the faculty, called up Police Headquarters.

Policemen McKenna and Leidy of the East Twenty-second street station were sent around but were lost in the tumbling crowd and seventeen reserves were sent to their assistance.

The police were greeted with catcalls and missiles. Some students scooped up handfuls of gravel from the street (the block is torn up for paving) and threw them. One genius found a bucket of water and his efforts were hailed with delight.

The policemen finally succeeded in driving the fighting students into the college building, but the fight did not stop there. The cane rush had been forgotten long before and freshmen and sophomores united against the common enemy.

The policemen had a hard time fighting their way back out of the building again and when they did get out the row was taken up again on the street.

Policeman McKenna tried to push Samuel Finckel of 9 Monroe street, one of the combatants in the fight. Finckel struck him in the face with his tie. The policeman drew his billy and made for the young man again. Before Finckel was locked up a can in his hand was bound up at Bellevue.

Policeman Leidy was in danger of being trampled on when two other policemen dragged him to his feet.

Two additional prisoners who were captured said they were Pasquale B. L. 19, 18 years old, of 913 145th street and Max Erick, 19, of 913 145th street, Hoboken.

Following in line the police charged the students several times until they had separated them and driven them into side streets. The cane disappeared.

Finckel was locked up on a charge of assaulting a policeman and will be arraigned in the Yorkville court this morning. Blaise and Erick were discharged by Magistrate Herman in the night court after the dean of the college had appeared to the Magistrate to let them go.

The dean said he did not like to have the boys sent to jail.

ALEXANDER PINCHED AGAIN.

Woman in Brewsters Says He Pawned Her Jewels and Kept the Money.

Marion Alexander, an optician, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of pawnbroking. She was charged with pawnbroking $3,333 in jewelry belonging to a woman in Brewsters and keeping the money.

On September 11 he was a prisoner in the Yorkville police court charged with running up a tab of $30 for a single ride and not paying it and he has figured in other cases of juvenility.

The arrest yesterday was made on a warrant issued by Justice of the Peace George W. Decker of Southern, Putnam county. The complainant is Mrs. Frank Smith of Brewsters. She says that she met Alexander at a house the summer before he was here with his father.

She knew him as Dr. Alexander, and in fact met him first when she bought some glasses from him. She and her brother, who live on a farm, were desirous of buying some cows and were about to make some notes to raise the money. She says that Alexander advised her to raise it by pawning the jewels, and that she gave them to him to pawn in New York. She got no return.

According to the detective Alexander admitted pawning the jewels and said he supposed he would have to take the consequences. The detectives found a lawyer to whom they say Alexander had turned over the pawn tickets as security for the lawyer's fees in getting Alexander out of his other scrapes.

The goods called for by these pawn tickets were looked up and Mrs. Smith found all of her jewels but one stickpin. Alexander will be taken to Brewsters to-day.

LOOTED MRS. SAGE'S HOUSES.

Three Boys Caught Before They Could Take Brass and Lead Pictures Away.

Two houses at 233 and 235 Madison avenue belonging to Mrs. Russell Sage, had been stripped of a water part of their brass fixtures and lead plumbing during the last day or two. The stuff was collected in the basements but the thieves were caught before they had a chance to get away with it.

Policeman Fitzpatrick found three boys in the basement of one of the buildings attempting to remove the loot. The boys said they were George Schier, an office boy, 15 years old, of 335 East Sixty-second street, Eugene Quigley, of the same age and address, and James Dunn, 12, living at 326 East Sixty-second street.

The boys had entered through a rear basement window. The houses are now occupied at present.

HE WHIPPED PARK DUCKS.

That Boy and Seven Others Who Stood Hiding Horses Are Arrested.

Joseph Taber, 15 years old, living at 335 East Forty-fifth street, was found yesterday by Keeper Joseph Cunningham making life miserable for the ducks and other water fowl that make the Central Park lake near Fifty-ninth street their home. Taber was spanking the ducks near shore with switches that he had broken from trees. He was arrested and taken to the City's office.

Earlier in the day seven other boys were arrested near the reservoir for throwing stones and sticks at horses along the north path. They said they did it because they thought it was fun to see the horses jump. Some did jump so that their riders were nearly thrown. Those boys also went to the City's office.

ARRESTED AS THE COWARD

EX-CONVICT ACCUSED OF USING BOY AS BULLET SHIELD.

He is Adolph Berg, Alias "Pickles," a Jeweller's Gangster Son. Says He's Innocent—Coroner Wants Him Indicted for Murder in the First Degree.

An undersized youth, who says he is 21 years old was arrested yesterday afternoon charged with killing Charley Fischer by holding the boy between himself and a revolver in the hands of Bluff Clark, a prizefighter, on Tuesday night. The police believe they have the right man, although the prisoner says he isn't and knows little of the shooting except what he has read in the newspapers. He had the latest editions of these in his pocket when arrested.

The prisoner is known on the east side of Harlem, the police say, as "Pickles"—one of the young gangsters of the neighborhood. His name is Adolph Berg, and he is the son of Julius Berg, an elderly jeweller at 2361 Eighth avenue. The father, mother and five sons live in the rear of the small jewelry shop.

Not many minutes after the twelve-year-old schoolboy, Charley Fischer, was taken to the Harlem Hospital, where he died, detectives from the Harlem branch bureau began going through the neighborhood for the man who had picked him up and held him in his arms as a shield against the fire of the prizefighter, who killed himself after he had killed the boy. The shooting came about the detectives learned, as the result of a row which started in a basement poolroom at Madison avenue and 103d street. Berg, it is asserted, went into the place and started to "lean it out." One of the men who objected was Harry Greenwald, the prizefighter, better known as Bluff Clark.

Berg, or "Pickles," struck Clark with his fist and the two went outside to have it out, the detectives were told, on the street, the row continued and then Greenwald pulled a gun and Berg ran, finally covering himself with the body of the child.

Yesterday afternoon Detectives Brenner and Tynne were tipped off that Berg was standing at 111th street and Fifth avenue with some pals. There they found him. At first he denied even his identity as "Pickles," and said that he was not in the neighborhood when the boy was killed. He had to go around to the branch bureau just the same, and there the detectives say he admitted that he had been one of the crowd, but still denied the killing.

Berg was taken to the Coroner's office and arraigned before Coroner Israel I. Feinberg, president of the board. He gave his name, age and address and said that he was a driver. Coroner Feinberg told him what the rights of a prisoner are and then asked him if he had anything to say. "Now, I don't want to say anything," he replied.

As Coroner Feinberg signed the papers committing the prisoner to the Tombs without had to await the inquest he said to Berg, "You're a fine specimen of humanity." The best thing that can happen to you is for you to get justice and to get it just as quick as possible. If words could express it, I should say you were a dirty dog." The youth sat unmoved by the tirade.

The complaint against Berg, which was signed by Detective Jesse Brenner, charges that he did take the body of Charley Fischer and held it before him when a revolver was pointed at him. He was charged with killing and holding the body of the boy.

At Police Headquarters Berg admitted six months in the workhouse in default of $500 bail on a sentence imposed in the Harlem court about a year ago on a charge of being drunk and disorderly. He said he never had been brought to Police Headquarters before and that the arrest he mentioned him pretty sharply, because he felt confident he had seen Berg in lineup at Headquarters not long ago. The prisoner persisted in his denial.

When the detectives were tipped off as to Berg's whereabouts their informant told them that the youth was still wearing the underclothes of the penitentiary which he had received while serving a recent term. He will be in the Headquarters lineup this morning for the scrutiny of detectives.

Berg's father was not at home last night, but an older brother, who said he worked in a downtown store, spoke for the family. This brother said that Adolph had been home last on Monday the prisoner had said he had slept at home Tuesday night. The brother said that Adolph had served a little less than two years in Sing Sing for attempted burglary. He was convicted, the brother said, of trying to break into a house on the East Side with two other young men. He had been out of Sing Sing only about a year, the brother said. There had been two or three other arrests. The brother continued that Adolph had not lived at home regularly in the last five years and that he would come home for two or three days and then would be away for a few days. He had been travelling with a bad gang for six or seven years, the brother went on, and had got out of the control of his family.

One of the five brothers, the older brother said, was a student in the City College and the others all were at work. The mother he said, knew nothing of her son's arrest and the newspapers had been kept from her all day.

Coroner Feinberg said that he would hold the inquest as soon as the police had their witnesses on hand. The detectives said they already had several witnesses and were looking for more.

This is the part of the definition of murder in the first degree as given in the penal laws, upon which Coroner Feinberg and the District Attorney's office believe that an indictment against Berg can be found.

The killing of a human being, unless it is excusable or justifiable is murder in the first degree, when committed by a person who is eminently dangerous to others and evincing a depraved mind, regardless of human life, although without a premeditated design to effect the death of any individual.

CRASH IN LITTLE HELL GATE.

Tugboat Hits a Launch and the Latter's Owner Is Drowned.

A tugboat known as Transfer No. 22, belonging to the river fleet of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, ploughed up in the blackness of Little Hell Gate last night at 11:20 o'clock off 107th street and rammed amidships a launch, the Grimmerick, which was towing three rowboats to High Bridge.

The two men aboard the Grimmerick were thrown into the river as the launch filled with water. The owner of the launch, Charles Garland, who lived with his family in his boathouse under High Bridge at 172d street, known as the White House, was drowned.

His companion, Charles Sutherland, 32 years old, of 71st street and Sunset place, got a bad scalp wound from the splintered edge of the launch gunwale when the tug cut into the launch.

The wounded man and Garland struck out for the Manhattan shore, but Garland was a poor swimmer. The tug Phoenix was close at hand and the crew of the Phoenix put about when they heard the cries coming from the water. Garland sank before the rescuers could grab him. The Phoenix crew pulled Sutherland aboard unconscious.

His companion, the Lincoln Hospital, where he is now lying, has not been recovered.

The captain of Transfer 22 left a report with the police that he saw no lights on the launch.

BROKE GLASS, HURT A NURSE.

Miss Wolff's Arm Paralyzed in Her Attempt to Stop a Window Breaker.

Miss Astride Wolf, a trained nurse living at 146 West 104th street, visited the Florence Crittenton Home in Bleeker street last night and as she was leaving she saw a man across the street breaking a window.

She crossed toward him. He broke another window. She demonstrated and he struck her. He ran away then and she ran after him. A policeman arrested him at the Bowers and Houston street.

In the night court Miss Wolf said that her arm when he had struck her was paralyzed. She could not raise it. The man said he was Patrick McGinn, 23 years old, of 282 Bowers. He had nothing to say. Magistrate House fined him $10.

ROOT MAY BE CHIEF JUSTICE

IF DEMOCRATS DON'T CARRY THE LEGISLATURE.

President is Considering the Matter, and It is Understood That Senator Root Would Accept the Place if It Were Offered. The Question of Age.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—President Taft is considering the matter of appointing United States Senator Root for appointment as Chief Justice of the Supreme Court. No decision has been reached yet by Mr. Taft in regard to the Chief Justiceship, but Senator Root is regarded by him at this time with as much favor as any other man. There is good reason to believe that Mr. Root would accept the place if it were offered him. This was learned to-day on excellent authority.

Senator Root's chances for appointment will depend largely, however, on the result of the coming election in New York State. If a Republican Legislature is elected the Senator's chances will be increased, for his appointment under any other circumstances would mean the surrender of his seat to the Democrats. It would mean too that New York State would be represented in the Senate by two Democrats, Senator Chauncey M. Depew's term expiring on March 3 next if the election in New York State goes against the Republicans the Senator himself probably would not consider a proposition which would involve the handing over of his seat to the opposition. It is understood that President Taft will wait until after the November election before settling the Chief Justiceship.

Senator Root called on the President at Beverly a day or two ago, but as Mr. Taft's friends here understand it, nothing definite passed between them about Senator Root taking a place on the bench. President Taft, from long association with Senator Root, knows just about how he feels in regard to service on the bench. The qualifications of other candidates for the Supreme Court vacancies were, however, discussed between the President and Senator Root.

One of the objections that has been urged against the appointment of Mr. Root to the Supreme Court is that New York State already has one representative in the person of Charles E. Hughes. There is a precedent, though, in Massachusetts' representation on the bench, Justices Moody and Holmes both being from that State.

Another objection registered against the Senator is his age. He is 65 years old and would have only five years to serve before he would be eligible to retire. Melville W. Fuller was only 55 years old when he was appointed Chief Justice.

Justice Lorton's age was one of the points urged against his appointment and President Taft is said to have told his friends that he would appoint younger men in the future. President Taft's high admiration for Mr. Root's knowledge of the law and general ability is known to all and in the end may outweigh the objections that are raised against him.

$200 FOR A HUSBAND.

Young German Woman Says She Must Be Married Within a Week to Get a Fortune.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—An attractive young German woman walked into a local newspaper office to-day and submitted for publication the following advertisement:

"Young woman, fairly wealthy, from foreign country, desires to meet at once some poor young man. Object, matrimony."

She gave her name as Eugenie Adams, but admitted that this was an assumed name. She said she is willing to give her prospective husband a bonus of $200. She explained that her uncle, who lives in Germany, has named her as the beneficiary in his will provided she marries in a week.

"You see it is the way," she explained with a German accent, "my old uncle is very eccentric. He lives in the Fatherland, where all my people are. He has named me the beneficiary of his will if I am married one week from to-day. I am very poor. I want the money. I plan to get married in order to obtain it. But I will not be troubled to him," she continued. "I will get a divorce from him at once and never see him again. I do not want to remain married. I only want to return to Germany at once with my inheritance money. Could a man make $200 in an easier way?"

She declined to give the amount of the legacy she expects to obtain through her marriage.

NINE BILLBOARD SPONFIRE.

Schoolboys Who Set Them Keep the Firemen Sweating.

The police and firemen of the upper West Side are on the trail of boys who took advantage of the holiday in the schools yesterday to make the firemen furnish them amusement by fighting a series of blazes from 42d to 145th street. A signboard at 77 Hamilton place was touched off. The number of companies that responded to the alarm pleased the boys, and after taking several hours of fun for themselves they set fire to a board of the New York Billposting Company on West 145th street. The flames did considerable damage.

About 6 o'clock the firemen were called upon to put out a blaze on the property of the Van Buren Billposting Company, at Morningside avenue and 126th street. By this time the police were on the lookout for the boys who they were told, had set the fire, but nobody was found.

Last night there were two more fires. At 126th street and Lexington avenue a signboard belonging to the Van Buren Billposting Company was damaged, and at 122d street and Park avenue the New York Billposting Company was a sufferer.

Deputy Fire Chief Captain of the Bronx, called on Chief Ahern Tappen at the Morrisania station last night to complain about the number of alarms that had been turned in for fires. He said that he had just come from one at Bergen avenue and 151st street. He said there had been nine fires in the city yesterday, six the day before and about twenty-five in the past week.

LE BANC'S FAST BLERIOT

Makes Estimated Speed of 70 Miles an Hour Two Nights in a Race.

St. Louis, Oct. 12.—Alfred LeBlanc at the aviation field to-day tried out the speed capabilities of the new Blériot XI monoplane, which he brought to St. Louis, and although no official time was taken the Frenchman said that the machine had shown a speed of seventy miles an hour.

The plane is one of three Blériots that he has brought to America to lift the international cup at New York October 28.

Hoxsey and Brookins had a six mile race straightaway across country and return to-day and at times were so close together that the wing tips almost touched. Hoxsey won by a few seconds, although Brookins had the advantage at the start.

Weyler Has Strong Force to Control Ferrer Day Demonstrations.

Special Cable Despatches to THE SUN. MADRID, Oct. 12.—The recent happenings in Portugal and the encouragement given thereby to the Spanish Socialists and Republicans have influenced the Government to take sharp measures to prevent dangerous developments in Barcelona tomorrow, the anniversary of the execution of Ferrer.

There is a strong military force in Barcelona, under the command of Valeriano Weyler, Captain General of Catalonia. The cruiser Carlos V. arrived there this evening and will aid in holding the revolutionary element in check.

The Socialists and Republicans will be allowed to place flowers on Ferrer's tomb, but the demonstrations will be kept within rigid limits.

FOUR UP IN A BIPLANE.

Successful First Flight of Hadley's Biplane Machine.

TARRYTOWN, Oct. 12.—Clinton O. Hadley of Tarrytown made a successful flight with his new biplane at the Empire City track at 5 o'clock this morning. The machine carried four people and left the ground when going at a speed of fifteen miles an hour. Hadley has probably the largest biplane in use. Its planes are forty feet long and seven feet wide. They are curved and they dip in shape from those of any machine yet built. The machine has been at the track for two weeks. This morning the wind was light and with the Rev. H. E. Wright, U. Grant Teetzel and Julius Gravenor of Tarrytown as passengers Hadley made his initial flight. He did not expect that his machine could carry the load, but it circled the track successfully and was completely under control at all times.

WOMEN'S ODD DIVERSION.

Said to Have Confessed to Robbing Farmers While on Auto Trip.

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—Mrs. Ralph E. Hayden, wife of Dr. Ralph E. Hayden, a dentist, her mother, Mrs. Mattie Jennings, a sister, Miss Laura Jennings, and Mrs. A. Cressner were taken into custody by detectives in connection with a series of burglaries at the homes of farmers in Crown Point, Ind.

Mrs. Hayden, who was arrested on a fugitive warrant charging larceny, made a verbal confession, the police say, admitting that she and the other women committed the thefts for "devilment" while on an automobile trip to Crown Point.

They stole $50 and $75 worth of butter, eggs, apple butter, lard, tableware and vegetables, said to have composed the property taken from the farmhouses. They were found in Mrs. Hayden's private automobile garage, the police say.

TO HOLD CONVENTION BY MAIL.

Massachusetts Democratic Delegates to Say Who Shall Run for Governor.

BOSTON, Oct. 12.—After a lively session of the Democratic State committee this afternoon, the body voted to follow after a fashion, the suggestion of Congressman Eugene N. Foss that the Democratic State convention delegates meet again and select the permanent candidate for Governor.

Instead of calling the State delegates together and practically holding another convention, the State committee will take a mail vote, and to-night the secretary was busy sending out special delivery letters to all the delegates, enclosing return special delivery envelopes and asking that the recipients express their preference for candidates for Governor.

The preference is for the "guidance" of the four-fifths committee to which was given authority by the convention to name permanent candidates for Governor and Lieutenant-Governor. There are symptoms, however, that the committee will not feel bound to follow the advice of the delegates as indicated by a mail vote.

SENATOR DOLLIVER III.

Much Concern Felt Over His Condition Sister Called Home.

DES MOINES, Ia., Oct. 12.—Much concern is felt over the condition of Senator J. P. Dolliver, who is confined to his bed at his home in Fort Dodge. Telephone messages to-day say that the Senator has a severe attack of stomach trouble.

His sister, Miss Gay Dolliver, a member of the faculty of Morningside College at Sioux City, was summoned to-day.

Senator Dolliver has not been in good health for several months. His wife declared that he had not had a vacation in thirty-five years and that it was imperative that he take a rest.

LONGWORTH AFTER THE COOKS.

Congressman Sending Cook Books to His Constituents Instead of Speeches.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 12.—Nicholas Longworth is in the campaign for reelection to Congress, and is flooding the First district with literature saving strictly of the kitchen. He is eschewing current political issues.

Longworth's cook book campaign down cost him a cent, for the cook books were issued by the Agricultural Department and being a Congressman, Longworth is permitted to frank them.

The post offices of the First district were choked up to-day with Longworth's bags of cook books. There are three of the books in each package. One is a tract on "Preparation of Vegetables for the Table," another is a treatise on "The Laws of Food in the Home," and the third contains forty-three pages on "The Economical Use of Meat in the Home."

DIX MAKES FIGHT

ON ROOSEVELTISM

Most Vital Question Ever Before New York Voters, He Believes.

NEW NATIONALISM A MENACE

Democratic Candidate for Governor Tells Where He Stands on All the Issues.

THOMSON, N. Y., Oct. 12.—A business-like administration of State affairs which will secure to the people an honest return for every dollar taken from them in the form of taxation, either direct or indirect, was promised by John A. Dix to-day when he accepted the Democratic nomination for Governor.

"I have been trained in business methods," added Mr. Dix.

He said that for years corruption had run riot in official life at Albany, and promised, if elected, to turn on the searchlight and drive the black horse cavalry out of the Capitol.

Urging that the tariff should be so revised that the average man will be able to save something from his income after he has paid for the bare necessities of life, Mr. Dix vehemently asserted that Col. Roosevelt could not evade this vital issue by injecting his own personality into the State campaign.

Cries of "Good! Good!" greeted Mr. Dix's references to Col. Roosevelt's criticism of the United States Supreme Court when he said:

"Any American who, occupying a position of authority or having the public ear, assaults and attacks our courts is to be regarded as a public enemy and should be so branded by every reasonable man."
